Texas law recently changed to specify different, less restrictive and less costly alternatives to guardianship. Texas law also outlined a new alternative called, Supported Decision Making. This model allows young adults with disabilities to enter into supported decision making agreements to communicate their wish that a parent, friend or trusted adult can help them with decisions.

- Come learn more about these promising alternatives.
- Transition age youth and caregivers are all welcome to attend and there is no cost for the presentation.

Presented by: Dustin Rynders
